Introduction to Animation

9th Dec Final Submission

Image from final Point of View film

Green - Yuyang Zhao

Point of View Project Link : Intro to Animation – Animation Blog (arts.ac.uk)

Brainstorming of point of view project.

The 'Intro to animation' courses really broaden my perspective on observing things and making animation. I was impressed on the task that we were asked to take 20 photos and draw a map nearby. This assignment allowed me to observe the ordinary things with a more creative mind to find and feel something unusual. Also, the elephant and castle project offers me a precious opportunity of improving communicative and collaborative skills when work in a team. In the 'Point of View' project, I got inspiration from my green necklace and I decided to make a film to show the charm of green. In my view, green always make me natural, energetic and hopeful. However, it could also represent some negative emotions like envy. I found this contrast is interesting and mysterious which makes me want to explore further. Thus, I did some research to visualize the different characteristics of green. During the process, I found it's difficult to develop them and do more visual experiments because express feelings on a color is abstract. I tried my best to explore more visual effects and I will continue to improve this kind of skills. In short, I was really enjoyed with this project as well as the independent and creative process. All the experience would help me work better in the future.

Brainstorming and Moodboard

Visual

Experiments

Storyboards